HONG KONG ESCAPES TYPHOON

Storm Passes East Of Colony

AFTER A DAY OF HECTIC PREPARATIONS, HONG KONG ESCAPED THE TYPHOON WHICH HAD BEEN THREATENING THE COAST IN THE NEIGHBOURHOOD OF THE COLONY SINCE THE EARLY MORNING. THE TYPHOON WAS EXPECTED TO PASS HONG KONG ABOUT 8 P.M. LAST NIGHT.

During the afternoon and evening strong gusts of wind prevailed and there was every indication that the Colony would experience a severe blow. The usual harbour activity preceding a typhoon was witnessed. Liners made their way to Kowloon Bay and the smaller craft to the shelters at Causeway Bay and Yaumati.

TYPHOON FACTS

OCTOBER 3

OCTOBER 4

5.24 a.m. No. 5 signal hoisted (Gale expected from the north-west).

9 a.m. Typhoon about 150 miles east-south-east of Hong Kong moving north-west or west-north-west and threatening the coast in the neighbourhood of the Colony.

11.36 a.m. Typhoon in lat. 21N. long. 116E. moving north-west.

3.12 p.m. Typhoon in lat. 21N. long. 115E. moving west-north-west.

5 p.m. Typhoon 40 miles east by south of Colony, moving north-west by north.

5.46 p.m. Typhoon in lat. 22N. long. 115E. moving west-north-west.

The hoisting of the No. 5 signal at the Royal Observatory at 5.24 a.m. yesterday indicated that a gale was expected from the north-west.

Enquiries at the Royal Observatory last night disclosed that the typhoon, according to Mr. G. S. P. Heywood, acting Director, had crossed the coast about 30 miles east of Hong Kong between 8 and 9 p.m. moving in a west-north-westerly direction, at a rate of 14 miles per hour. The typhoon was expected to back through west to south-west during the night with no increase in wind velocity.

The highest maximum speed of the wind was 67 miles per hour at 7.15 p.m. and the average speed did not attain gale force.

The typhoon passed Gap Rock and Waglan where the wind reached gale force at 6 p.m., and was reported to be still blowing last night.

Shanghai, Oct. 4: Six Japanese transports, all heavily laden with bombs and other supplies for the Japanese air force here, arrived in Shanghai this afternoon. The cargo was immediately unloaded at the Yangtsepoos district, and from there sent by a fleet of 30 trucks to the front.—Central News.

JAPAN DENOUNCED

Bournemouth, Oct. 4: The Labour Party annual conference unanimously passed a resolution denouncing the Japanese attacks on China and demanding a boycott of Japanese goods.—Reuter.

BRITAIN MUST BE POWERFULLY ARMED

London, Oct. 4: "In the present grim situation Britain must be powerfully armed," declared Mr. Hugh Dalton when presiding at the annual conference of the Labour Party at Bournemouth "otherwise we will run immediate and immeasurable risks and would be in danger of humiliations and intimations of acts of intolerable intervention to our national affairs. But arms must be linked with the League ideal of collective security courageously applied against aggression, also with the sincere offer to take stock of the world's wealth to establish equal opportunities for all nations to share on condition that nations agree to the peaceful settlement of disputes and reduction in armaments," he added.—Reuter.

PROVISIONAL UNIVERSITY IN CHANGSHA

Lost Ground Regained In Chapei Sector

TROOPS DEFY MACHINE-GUN FIRE

SHANGHAI, OCTOBER 4.

FURIOUS FIGHTING RAGED ALL DAY LONG IN ALL SECTORS AS THE JAPANESE CONTINUED THEIR ATTEMPT TO BATTER DOWN THE CHINESE RESISTANCE. IN THE COURSE OF WHICH THEY USED TANKS AND OTHER MECHANISED UNITS, WHILE THEIR AIR FORCE RAINED BOMBS ON THE CHINESE LINES AND THEIR ARTILLERY KEPT UP AN INTENSIVE SHELLING.

FIERCE HAND TO HAND ENCOUNTERS TOOK PLACE IN CHAPEI WHERE THE CHINESE CLAIM THEY REGAINED SOME LOST GROUND BY THE HEROIC SACRIFICE OF THE "DARE TO DIE TROOPS" WHO, EXPOSED TO POINT-BLANK MACHINE-GUN FIRE, RUSHED FORWARD THROWING HAND GRENADES.

THE JAPANESE USED A BALLOON IN THE YANGHONG AREA FOR OBSERVATION PURPOSES, THIS BEING THE FIRST TIME THEY EMPLOYED THIS DEVICE.—REUTER.

Taiyuan, October 4: The newly-reorganised 8th Route Army "Iron roller" under General Chu Teh and General Peng Teh-huai, pushing eastward into Shansi province, re-captured the strategic town of Shihien, 85 kilometres east of Taiyuan, according to belated reports received here.

The victorious army occupied the town on October 1 and captured 200 Japanese, Manchukuo and Mongol soldiers.

The Chinese forces are pursuing the Japanese troops who are fleeing into the hills. Shihien, also known as Yiyu, was taken by the Japanese on September 28. Over 3,000 Chinese civilians and 700 soldiers were massacred when the city fell.—Central News.

AIR RAID ALARM IN HANKOW

Hankow, Oct. 4: An air raid alarm was sounded here at 4.30 this afternoon when it was reported that three Japanese bombers were sighted at Hsiushui, in northern Kiangsi, and were heading for Hankow. However, no planes appeared over the city and the all-clear signal was given at 5.50 o'clock.

It is learned later that the planes were forced back owing to bad weather and poor visibility. The planes, however, were sighted over Shangyao, Kaoyuan and Wantsai. No bombs were dropped.—Central News.

JAPANESE "CO-OPERATION"

INDIGNATION IN SHANGHAI

American Passengers Stopped At Kobe

Shanghai, Oct. 4.

Bitter indignation is caused among the American community here over the action of the U.S. Consular officials in Kobe in compelling Shanghai-bound American passengers to disembark from the liner Chenonceaux. It is learned that several of those concerned are asking their representatives in Congress to make strong representations in Washington.

The American-owned "Evening Post" in an editorial under the caption "Outrage At Kobe" says this action "leaves the American Consular Service record stained by a most undignified outrage in the form of interference with the personal liberties of American citizens abroad."

NOT VALID FOR CHINA

Shanghai, Oct. 4: About twenty Shanghai-bound American men, women and children had to leave the French liner, Chenonceaux, at Kobe at the request of the American Consular officials who stamped their passports "not valid for China," according to non-American passengers arriving at Shanghai.

DOING CHINA MORE HARM THAN GOOD

London, Oct. 4.

The Archbishop of Canterbury has refused to make a statement with reference to an appeal from the Anglican Bishop of south Tokyo that he will not preside at tomorrow's Albert Hall meeting to urge action against Japan. Opposition newspapers team with letters denouncing Japanese invasion of China. Signs, however, are not wanting and some circles opine that such a denunciation will only aggravate Japanese militarists to do China more harm than good where direct intervention is not to be expected.—Reuter.

Mrs. Non Chisholm, an American, outwitted the search party on the ship by hiding under her bed where she remained until the ship sailed for Shanghai.—Reuter.

MORE UNITED THAN EVER

No Peace With "Murderers!"

Shanghai, Oct. 4.

The day's bitter fighting does not appear to have produced material change in any of the sectors. The Chinese unrelentingly pumped shells into the area just north of the Settlement Boundary where the Japanese have been attempting to thrust forward to the North Station.

The Japanese bombing of the Chinese lines in Chapei to-day was carried out with the new type, triple-engine monoplane which at one time dropped fourteen huge projectiles within the space of ten minutes.

The prediction that the Chinese forces will withdraw their second line of defence, generally known as their Hindenburg Front, on or before October 10, was made by a Japanese spokesman who said "We may yet see the Chinese retreat on their national holiday."

This remark was made in reply to the Chinese commander who, when told that the Japanese hope to drive out the Chinese by October 15, countered by asking "which year?"

Dr. Sun Fo, President of the Legislative Yuan, made a statement saying that it is clear the Japanese aim is the complete domination of China.

"Not until the last Japanese soldier has left our soil can we entertain any other thought than fighting to the bitter end. Peace is impossible with murderers. Thanks to Japanese aggression and lawlessness, China is now more united than ever before."—Reuter.

CHOLERA STILL MOUNTING

Shanghai, Oct. 4.

Cholera in Shanghai is still steadily mounting, the latest official figures show that there were 47 new cases overnight, bringing the total to 1069. Altogether there had been 241 deaths of which 21 occurred in the past twenty-four hours.—Reuter.

JAPANESE AT SANGYUAN SURROUNDED

Tsinan, Oct. 4: The Japanese column isolated at Sangyuan, important town on the Hsueh-Shantung border, is still being surrounded by Chinese troops, according to latest advice received here. Reinforcements were rushed south from Tsangchow but were repulsed by the Chinese. Three Japanese tanks in that vicinity were also damaged.—Central News.

JAPANESE PLANES BOMB KIANGSU

Shanghai, Oct. 4: Thirty Japanese planes, flying in several groups, just before dawn this morning, bombed Chenju and Nanzhang on the Nanking-Shanghai Railway not far from Shanghai. The details of the attack are unknown. Later in the morning another squadron of nine machines flew over the western suburb of Shanghai and bombed Huatsnochen village, demolishing over 20 houses and killing three civilians and injuring four others.—Central News.

HELP FOR CHINA

Budget Committee Approves Grant

Geneva, Oct. 4.

The Budget Committee has approved the proposal to grant £100,000 to fight epidemics in China.

Mr. Walter Elliot gave Britain's support and Sir Denry Bray, on behalf of India, said the Indian people were deeply moved by the plight of the Chinese people, and if the Assembly adjourned without giving definite help to China, the feelings of the Indian people would be outraged.—Reuter.

MANY CHINESE KILLED

Shanghai, Oct. 4: Reports coming into Shanghai to-night state that many Chinese civilians were killed during the Japanese aerial bombardments to-day of Kiangwan, Taziang, Chapei, Markham Road Station, Chenju and Nanzhang.—Central News.

FIERCE FIGHTING EAST OF MIAOHANG

Shanghai, Oct. 4: According to a telephone report from the front, fierce fighting has broken out east of Miaohang near the Tomb for the Unknown Soldiers, a monument erected in memory of the Chinese who fell during the 1932 Shanghai War.

The war front in that area stretches 300 metres where the Chinese are stubbornly holding back the attacking Japanese.—Central News.

DONATIONS TO WAR CHEST

Nanking, Oct. 4: The Overseas Affairs Commission to-day received contributions to the national war chest from Chinese residents in 92 different places, totalling $479,000, it was announced here. Kwallin, October 4. The staff of the local branch of the Standard Oil Company of New York announced to-day that they have raised $3,500, deducted from their salaries, which will be contributed to the national war chest.—Central News.

JAPANESE AIM TO DISRUPT TIENSIN-PUKOW LINE

Hsuechow, Oct. 4: A fleet of 12 Japanese bombers, flying from the direction of Lienyunkang Harbour, bombed three towns along the Tientsin-Pukow Railway, including Hanchuang, Sanpao and Hsiachen yesterday. It is believed that the Japanese are aiming to disrupt the service on the line.—Central News.

500 JAPANESE ARRIVE IN SHANGHAI

Shanghai, Oct. 4: A big Japanese artillery unit, composed of 500 men, arrived in Shanghai to-day aboard a special transport. A number of heavy and light field pieces were also unloaded.—Central News.

ISOLATION OF JAPAN STRESSED

Berlin, Oct. 4.

Isolation of Japan is stressed by the "Frankfurter Zeitung" in the course of an article surveying the situation in the Far East. The paper doubts whether economic penalties would succeed in forcing Japan to her knees but emphasises that such measures would unquestionably add to the already serious difficulties with which Japan has to contend. In the paper's view much will depend on the Japanese estimate of Anglo-Saxon determination to take action.—Transocean News Service.

Look at Your Skin

Skin Specialists declare that 50 out of every 100 women suffer from skin outbreaks, spots, pimples, blotches, and 'muddy' complexions UNNECESSARILY!

Ugly complexion faults are woman's most common enemy. Few escape. Some resort to heavy powdering in an effort to hide them. Whilst others, due to consistent wrong treatment, cause the skin to become highly sensitive, coarse and blemished.

To make your skin clear and healthy, your complexion fresh and smooth, use Cuticura.

Cleanse the skin with Cuticura Soap twice a day. Its luxuriant and mildly antiseptic lather is soothing and softening; washes away pore-deep dirt which causes blackheads, enlarged pores and ugly complexion defects. And to rid the skin of pimples, skin outbreaks, rashes or irritations use Cuticura Ointment direct on the affected part before washing with the soap. Its antiseptic action kills germs, soothes and heals and quickly clears the skin.

Try Cuticura to-day. See how soon your skin improves, your complexion becomes smoother, more attractive than ever before.

Cuticura

Sold by all Chemists and Stores. Ask for Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. And for powder use Cuticura Talcum—exceptionally fine and pure, exquisitely perfumed.

AIR DEFENCE*Unity Or Duality?

(BY AIR COMMODORE L. E. O. CHARLTON.)

The result of the Fleet Air Arm Inquiry as to whether the Navy should be granted complete and absolute control of this portion of the Royal Air Force is not yet known in a sense of wide publicity. This may happen before these words appear in print. Whatever the decision may be, however, and, although unalterable until put to the acid test of war, those who fervently believe that to do this thing would be a huge mistake will not cease the endeavour to make their voices heard in protest.

Among them is Brig.-Gen. P. R. C. Groves, so well known for his book "Behind the Smoke Screen," as also for his forcible Press articles on the wide subject of air power, expressed with crystal clarity. Finding that his views on this particular matter were unacceptable to the Press at large, he has recently produced a pamphlet, "Unity or Duality in the Air," published at his own expense and distributed to all those, including Members of Parliament, whose opinion might carry weight. I have it before me now and am happy to express my entire concurrence with all it has to say. It amounts to a convincing argument.

The writer points out at the beginning that the one indispensable condition for security is adequate air defence for the British Isles, the island centre of our Empire. But aircraft development has been such, and is still proceeding, that no part of Great Britain, or the home waters which surround it, is outside the range of Continental air force. Our merchant shipping could thus be sunk in wholesale fashion in tidal waters or in port without the Navy being able to lift a hand for their protection, or for that of any other nerve centres so attacked. Sea-borne air force, because of the vulnerability of carriers and because land machines must of necessity be finally superior in number, size, and power, can never match the shore-based aircraft.

COMMENSURABLE VALUE

Constituted as it is at present, only a Cabinet decision can avail to detach any part of the Fleet Air Arm from the Navy for any purpose, whatsoever. Supposing, then, that London, an objective compared to which no other city in the world possesses a commensurable value, were being subjected to air bombardment and were in extremity, is it likely that the retention of considerable numbers of fighting aircraft for the protection of our naval bases, especially the South Coast harbours, which are so short a flight from the Metropolis, would be tolerated for a moment? And, that being so, what possible point can there be in separation when such a policy must be overruled in hurry and confusion, with the added risk of mistaking identities in the air owing to lack of coordination, in a contingency the likeliest of all to happen at the outset of the next world war?

It is, perhaps, not generally appreciated that with the naval claim for separation goes a general responsibility for coastal defence as well. This appears on the face of it to be almost incredible lack of thinking power! The bombers will range in from their overseas approach, flight at a speed of 300 miles an hour. How can there be any possible line of demarcation between a coastal and an inland area in circumstances such as those? They will come, for preference, in mist and cloud and darkness, and to them their own intentions will be plain. How could joint action, or effective co-ordination, both vital for success, be achieved between the units of two distinct air forces, each differently trained and equipped and each acting under a separate set of orders?

ECONOMY OF FORCE

As well might there be distinction between the North Sea and Atlantic in the ocean regions where their waters join. Separation is utterly opposed to the principle of economy of force, and in conflict as well with the need for the fullest exploitation of the speed and flexibility of air operations properly conceived. Only a homogeneous air force, trained and equipped on a unifying principle and operated from a single centre, can suffice to ensure the observance of these hard and fast laws of air strategy which know of no exception.

Thus it is patent that dual control in the air would be a hindrance, rather than assistance, to our home defence; not only as affecting London and other main nerve centres, attack on which would be a menace to the nation's will to war, but also, inclusive of our naval bases and, indeed, the Fleet itself when stationed in home waters. An argument sometimes put forward is that this dual control would at least serve to re-establish our naval control of the Mediterranean, lost for the time being to Italy, which possesses the strongest local air force. The argument is false! The many lengths of narrow water in that sea would woefully increase the already large enough vulnerability to air bombardment of the aircraft carrier, and all our shipping could be denied a passage unless we had the use of territory close at hand on which to base the operations of our main air power. Unity of control is just as necessary for Imperial as for national defence, and for long now the Middle Eastern area, served over its whole extent by inter-linking Air Force stations, has been a single unit defensively considered.

HONG KONG BASE

And the same applies to the Far East, for Hong Kong, our main naval base in Chinese waters, is now within two hours' flight of the Formosan air bases of Japan. Some contend that, even so, there are vast ocean stretches, beyond the range of any shore-based aircraft, in which the Navy alone can protect our commerce, and must, for that reason, have a stronger air arm. Then let them have it! The present system is not to blame for this unsatisfactory requirement of theirs. The remedy is in Admiralty hands, for the Fleet Air Arm is provided out of Navy Estimates and the Sea Lords have only to agitate for more money to obtain as much as they require.

Another cogent reason for maintaining the "status quo," particularly in view of our vast financial commitments for rearmament, is the huge and extra expense involved by the duplication of establishments at home and elsewhere which separation would entail. The various training schools required, the outlay on aerodromes and buildings, initial and recurrent, and the added staffs and services would mean a great addition to expenditure in a period of financial stress. Above all, the old story of ruinous competition between the Services for a sharing out of the available resources would be retold, so detrimental to a real efficiency and so wasteful in its methods. For this, in sum, was the reason for the establishment of an Air Force as a third and independent arm of defence. In the days of the war a fierce inter-departmental competition, quite unrelated to the country's needs, divided the market for material and personnel. Are we to see a repetition of that woebegone spectacle on the next occasion?

SPECIALISED DUTIES

One wonders what the Admiralty really want. They can have the aircraft for the asking; specialized duties calling for a background of naval experience are now performed by Navy personnel on a Service basis entirely at the Admiralty's choice; essential training for the other duties, bombing, torpedo attack, and combat in the air, is common either over sea or over land. What do they really want? A certain admiral of distinction has already made a remarkable pronouncement on the subject. "It is improper," he remarked; "that the Royal Air Force should be intruded into the domestic life of the Navy." Can that be a sample of the mental attitude by which the insistence on duality has been evoked? Or are the words of Sir John Salmond, in a letter to the "Sunday Times" last year, even more to the point. This is what he said: "The system is not at fault when the comprehensive view is taken that it forms part of the greater pattern of air defence of these islands and the Empire. The Admiralty would destroy that pattern for the sake of a parochial and possessive instinct which demands a huge segregation of air units to itself alone."

At Aldershot the other day a senior drum-major threw his staff into the air and dropped it. This certainly supports the contention of that Polish scientist that the world is coming to an end.

AIR TOUR OF BRITAIN*In Search Of Scrap Iron

A 10-day air tour of Great Britain to check the progress being made in the national Scrap Campaign—which aims at collecting all scrap iron and steel to help national rearmament—is being made by two representatives of the British Iron and Steel Corporation.

They will cover 3,000 miles in their survey in search of data which will determine future plans for collecting scrap from home sources.

They will visit some 20 towns during their flight including Leeds, Middlesbrough, Glasgow, Belfast, Manchester, Birmingham and Swansea, where there are headquarters of the Scrap Merchants' Associations.

Another object will be to explore the opportunities available for voluntary collectors of old iron to take part in this national effort. A great number of boy scouts, members of the British Legion, clergymen and others have already offered to assist and it is desired to co-ordinate their activities so as not to encroach upon the livelihood of small dealers.

CONSEQUENCES

This tedious business of having to try to write English when you're not very sure how it's done can be made much more pleasant if you treat it as a game. It is a form of consequences (Pretty Fanny Adams met dangerous Mr. Hoxley in Petticoat Alley). The idea is to save the printer's time and give your readers something to unravel.

"Coin-spinner Alex James" is a recent example. Then there are "Mars-defier Anthony Eden" "art-purser Goering," "sabotege-squasher Stalin," "championship-forecaster Farr," "bank-rustler Abernath," "John Bull-spurner de Valera," and "Judge-jostler Roosevelt." Peter Simple in the "Morning Post."

WOMEN FEAR WAR

Fear of a war is dominating the women of all countries, declared Miss E. Picton-Turberville, formerly M.P. for Wrekin, at a conference of Yorkshire teachers in Leeds recently.

Among the young people everywhere, she added, there was a sense of impending doom.

In all countries in Europe they were saying: "What is the good of anything when war is inevitable?" This fear was proving detrimental to education.

Mr. D. R. Davis, of London, said Hitler was "A man who has made a science of the government of gangsters." Such a government did not merit the return of any colonies.

CRIME OVER LONDON

American gangsters operating from headquarters in London is the novel theme developed in Criterion Films' production "Crime Over London," which comes to the Majestic To-day.

Margot Grahame, the beautiful British actress who rose to stardom by her portrayal in "The Informer," plays her most dramatic part in a British film as a gangster's "moll." Paul Cavanagh, Joseph Cawthorne, Rene Ray and Basil Sydney play the leading roles.

A stowaway found on an ocean liner weighed eighteen stone. Presumably he had been making a practice of stowing away for years.

THE GREAT O'MALLY

That ever-popular Irish film star, Pat O'Brien has the title role in "The Great O'Mally," a melodrama of life in New York's colourful East Side which opens at the King's Theatre to-day.

Pat's a policeman this time. He's Officer O'Mally, a tough, hardboiled copper who cannot see beyond his rule book until a little crippled girl and a lovely school teacher humanize him. By the time the final fadeout ends, the story he's a regular fellow, just as Pat always is, in films indeed, in real life.

The East Side settings for this picture are the talk of Hollywood. Three square blocks of that crowded New York territory were built from photographs of the actual region.

ARMOURED CAR

Packed with intense interest, Universal's "Armoured Car," which opens to-day at the Alhambra Theatre, is one of the season's exciting thrill-dramas. It presents a new field of action in screen entertainment, revealing the thrilling incidents that occur in the lives of men who guard armoured trucks which convey huge sums of money and security.

The picture features Robert Wilcox in the role of a guard in charge of an armoured truck and Irving Pichel as a mastermind of the underworld, who tries to rob these modern treasure galleons.

GOOD OLD SOAK

On the screen at the Oriental Theatre for Wednesday and Thursday you will see that unforgettable character, the Old Soak, immortalized by Don Marquis in his original novel. Wallace Beery now finds his greatest role in this characterization.

The picture, "Good Old Soak," from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer draws a cross-section of the America that was—the United States in the era of prohibition. Beery portrays the character of a small town philosopher who retires from active business in order to locate the local speakeasies.

JOSEF LAMPKIN

Recital in Singapore.

Mr. Josef Lampkin, the noted American violinist, will give a recital in Singapore on October 7. He has been travelling in the Far East most of the year, and appeared before large audiences in Nanking (where he was the guest of the American Ambassador), Hong Kong, Macao and other centres.

Mr. Lampkin has been described as the greatest of American born violinists. He was born in Los Angeles and made his first public appearance at the age of twelve. He studied with such masters as Leopold Auer, Ferenc Vecsey, Karl Flesch and Juno Hubay. He made his debut in Paris in 1927 and was hailed as a great virtuoso, and he appeared with equal success in London, Berlin, Budapest and other European cities.

Harriet's Partner

The romantic leads in RKO Radio's lavish musical "New Faces of 1937," are taken by Bill Brady and lovely Harriet Hilliard. Brady, whose tenor voice took New York by storm, makes his film debut in this picture. Harriet, who scored in "Follow the Fleet," is the well-known radio songstress.

NEW MARRIAGE LAWS

Public Criticism Invited

Two important pieces of legislation relating to the monogamous marriages of non-Christians and the registration of polygamous marriages by persons other than Christians or Muslims are to be introduced in the F.M.S. Legislative Council shortly.

The provisional drafts of these two new ordinances were published in the Government Gazette recently and comments on the proposed legislation may be sent by public bodies which are interested in the subject.

THE FIRST BILL

The first bill, which is intitled "An Ordinance to provide for the solemnisation and registration of monogamous marriages," has been drafted in order to meet a request by the Straits Chinese for legislation to make it possible for monogamous marriages in their community to be registered without being subject to the Christian Marriage Ordinance.

The new bill, therefore, provides that those persons who marry in accordance with its provisions will be prevented from entering into a marriage contract with a third person.

Anyone who enters into such a marriage will, therefore, be considered guilty of bigamy. There is a provision for re-marriage of persons who have already contracted one marriage.

IMPORTANT CLAUSE

An important section of the new ordinance is that clause which deals with the rights of succession and issue. This clause states that if a man, who is married under this new ordinance, later contracts a union with a woman which, but for such first marriage, would confer rights of succession or inheritance upon her or upon the issue of the union, no issue shall be regarded as legitimate or being in the right of inheritance in, or succession to, the estate of the man.

The draft provisions deal largely with the time for the solemnisation of such marriages, the powers given to persons to solemnise such marriages, and adds that no prosecution for an offence punishable under the ordinance shall be instituted without the authority of the Attorney-General.

SECOND BILL

The second draft ordinance relating to the registration of marriages by persons other than those who profess the Christian or Mohammedan faith, provides for the registration of particulars of marriage contracted in the colony, other than a marriage one of the parties to which is a Christian or Muslim, or a marriage under the Monogamous Ordinance or monogamous system of law.

HEROINE OF LOOS

Legion Of Honour For French Girl

A Frenchwoman who at the age of seventeen was a heroine of the Battle of Loos has been awarded the Legion of Honour.

Emillienne Moreau was only sixteen when Loos on Gohelle was occupied by the enemy in October 1914. She hid her father in a pigeon loft to save him from a German concentration camp, but he died and she had to make his coffin herself with odd planks picked up here and there.

She also saved a number of French and British soldiers who were wounded in the attacks and counter-attacks which raged round Loos. In order to prevent the village children from running about under the hail of shells, she organised a class of 42 children in a cellar.

Then came the Battle of Loos, towards the end of September 1915, when the Scottish regiments recaptured the village. Emillienne gave the British troops information which enabled them to dislodge the last machine-gunners defending Loos. Even before the village was entirely in British hands, she was helping the wounded, some of whom she had to defend against the retreating Germans. Four hundred wounded Scots were given shelter and treated by herself and her mother.

Her courage came to the ears of the High Command, and she was mentioned in army orders and decorated with the Croix de Guerre.

The British Government awarded her the Military Medal of the Red Cross and of St. John of Jerusalem. Queen Mary sent her a moving letter, and she was received by M. Poincare, President of the Republic.

Mlle. Moreau later brilliantly passed her examinations to become a schoolmistress, and is now living at Lens, where she married M. Just Evard, Secretary to the Minister of the Interior.

The Registrar is given the power to refuse to register such a marriage if he has reason to believe that a marriage between the parties is prohibited by the traditional and local usage of the religion professed by either party.

The Registrar may also refuse to register the marriage in any case in which the parties profess different religions.

The validity of the registration of the marriage will not be affected by the omission to register such a marriage or by error of particulars recorded.

A third provisional draft is also published in the Gazette for the purpose of amending the Divorce Ordinance to suit the requirements of the two ordinances referred to above if they should be passed in Council.

View The Same As Britain's

The Bishop of Bradford, Dr. Blunt, stated at Liverpool, on his return from Canada, that the feeling in the Dominion on the subject of the Duke of Windsor was much the same as in Britain.

"They feel that what ex-King Edward wanted to do could not be done," he told a reporter. "They were frightfully sorry for him, but now that he has abdicated, they do not want to talk about it."

Dr. Blunt added that in his sermons and lectures in Canada he made no reference to the Duke of Windsor, but had given interviews to the press.

MANY CITIES BOMBED DURING SUNDAY

Nanking, October 4.

The long arm of the Japanese air force reached far into the interior yesterday as squadrons of bombers flew over a dozen cities and villages and released their death-dealing missiles which claimed a heavy toll in lives and property.

A detailed report from Talyuan states that 13 bombers appeared over the city late on Saturday afternoon, dropping 10 bombs, killing many civilians, the exact number which has not been disclosed.

The other cities bombed yesterday include Nanjiang, Quinsan, Taihong, Changshu, Anching and Kashing. Thirty passengers in Quinsan were killed and injured when the bombs exploded on the railway station. Four bombs fell in Nanchang, the provincial capital of Kiangsi, and the same number of missiles were dropped on Changshu, a small village near Nanchang killing four civilians. It is claimed that the planes which bombed Changshu had the Chinese insignia painted on the wings.

In Anching 10 bombs were dropped from six planes, demolishing two houses and killing two children and a woman.

Eight bombers raided Kashing. Twenty bombs were released, completely demolishing the railway station, godown, the Min Foong Cotton Mill and station master's residence. Seven refugees were killed and 12 others injured.

CHINESE WITHDRAWAL FROM LIUHOH-LOTIENCHEN SECTOR

Shanghai, October 4.

It is officially announced by the Chinese military headquarters this morning that for "tactical reasons" the Chinese forces entrenched about 1,000 Meters west of the Shanghai-Taihang highway in the Liuho-Lotienchen sector have withdrawn to pre-arranged positions.

The move, it is explained, will give better co-ordination between this column and the Chinese right flank in Chapel, Kiangwan and Miaohong. It is claimed that the retreat will in no way affect the whole Chinese line which is well fortified and prepared to meet the Japanese drive further inland.

The Chinese headquarters claim that the withdrawal was effected after several days of fierce fighting during which time between 2,000 and 3,000 Japanese were slain and wounded on the field.

Meanwhile, heavy Chinese reinforcements are on the south side of the Wen Tsao Creek and are preventing the Japanese from crossing. Fierce fighting is still in progress.

3,000 VILLAGERS MASSACRED

Nanking, October 4.

According to information received here, three thousand Chinese civilians are reported to have been massacred by Japanese troops in the village of Suhsien, which is also known as Yiyu, about 85 kilometres west of Tating in northern Shansi.

The outrage occurred on Sept. 28 when the Japanese army, pushing southward along the Peiping-Suiyuan Railway, captured the town.

The Chinese garrison force, numbering 700 soldiers under General Ho Chu-kuo, were outnumbered and annihilated during the Japanese onslaught. The fall of the town followed a 12-hour engagement and the Chinese resistance collapsed when the Japanese broke down the north and east gates of the town and slaughtered the defenders.

The message then asks Shirley to request her older friends to raise funds to be sent to China to help these victims.

JAPANESE SUCCESS ADMITTED

Shanghai, Oct. 3.

The Chinese admit that the Japanese have occupied the Lotien-Liuhang highway, part of the "iron belt" fortifications north of Shanghai after the bitterest fighting but claim that they retreated only a short distance, with very heavy casualties on both sides. A heavy artillery duel continued all day long. Chinese guns from Footung pounded the Japanese rear in Yangtsepo and a shell hit the bows of a Japanese transport.

A message from Peiping states that according to a Japan communiqué, the Japanese claim to have captured Techow, Shantung, sixty miles north of the Yellow River.

SPECTACULAR RAID STAGED OVER FOOTUNG

Shanghai, Oct. 4: The Japanese planes staged a spectacular raid over Lanitu on the Footung side just across the Whangpoo River from the French Concession last night when the airmen, after releasing two huge Verrey light balls, emptied their bomb-racks carrying death and destruction to the villages in that region.

A number of incendiary bombs were dropped setting fire to the area which had escaped the serious bombing in the lower reaches of the river mouth. The flames shot high up into the air and were used as targets by the Japanese warships anchored off the Yangtsepo district which simultaneously poured hundreds of shells into that area.

Small parties of Japanese marines made preparations to go ashore but Chinese machine-gunsners opened fire on the marines as they attempted to land.

Another report states that the two Japanese fliers who were shot down yesterday at Tazang, have succumbed to their wounds.

Chinese To Retrieve Positions

Peiping, Oct. 4.

The Chinese are shortly to make a supreme effort to retrieve the military positions in North China, according to Japanese reports from Paoingru.

These reports are to the effect that Marshal Chiang Kai-shek has massed 130,000 troops in the vicinity of Shihchiachwang near the border of Hopei and Shansi Provinces.

The reports add that General Chien Chien, chief of the Nanking General Staff, has been sent to Shihchiachwang with an order for General Liu Chih, the Chinese Commander-in-Chief in North China, to halt at all costs the Japanese advance in the Pinghan Railway zone when it is dark.

The Japanese troops are at present at Hsinlo, only 30 miles to the north of Shihchiachwang which is strategically important because of the junction of the Pinghan railway line with the line to Talyuan on the west, the capital of Shansi.

INTERNATIONAL ACTION URGED

Labour Condemns Japan

London, Oct. 3.

The National Executive of the Labour Party, at Bournemouth, agreed to a resolution which will be submitted at the annual conference on Monday.

The resolution is as follows. The conference warmly welcomes the action of the Leader of Opposition demanding an early meeting of Parliament to consider action to be taken to vindicate international law and speedily end these shameful outrages against humanity.

The conference views with horror the massacre of helpless Chinese people pursuing their peaceful callings on land and sea. The continued acquiescence of other Powers in this barbaric method of warfare is fraught with grave dangers for the security of their own peoples and the future of our civilisation and should no longer be tolerated.

The conference emphatically condemns the deliberate and unprovoked acts of war by Japan against China over many years; calls on the British Government forthwith to prohibit British citizens selling war materials and lending money to Japan, to co-operate with other members of the League of Nations and the United States by imposing measures of economic and financial pressure designed to bring Japanese aggression to an end; calls on the British Government to furnish medical supplies and other forms of humanitarian assistance to the Chinese people, and urges all British citizens to express detestation of Japanese barbarism by refusing to buy Japanese goods.

TENSION IN JERUSALEM

Arab Youths Close Bazaar!

Jerusalem, Oct. 3.

Tension prevails in the old city in Jerusalem where groups of Arab youths, perambulating in the morning, forced the bazaar to close. The police had a busy time chasing the picketers and assuring merchants of protection.

The new city is unaffected. Tension continues in Jaffa as the result of the strike agitation. Many Arab shops opened in the morning but closed later under the stress of intimidation, and the Port of Jaffa is also closed.

All Arab shops were closed in Safad where rifle fire from three sides was directed on the Jewish quarter of the town but there were no casualties.

The Grand Mufti issued a proclamation from his self-imposed imprisonment in the Mosque of Omar, urging the Arabs to return to work.

APPEAL FROM THE CHURCH

Japan's Actions Deplored

London, Oct. 3.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, the Moderator of the Church of Scotland, the Moderator of the Federal Council of Free Churches and the leaders of the Congregational, Presbyterian and Methodist churches, in a letter to the "Times" state:

"As representatives of the Christian Church in Britain, we wish to express our shame and horror at the action of the Japanese air force in the several recent bombings on civilian centres and population in China. The events of recent weeks ought to evoke from men of goodwill throughout the world, a general emphatic protest against such appalling and useless suffering, and still more against the spirit of aggressive warfare by which it had been brought about.

"We refuse to believe that Japan is not sensitive to the opinion of the civilised world and we appeal to her to reconsider her policy and renounce such measures."

PROOF READERS' TRIALS

There are names which are so distinguished as to be a source of trial to their owners, names containing lots of y's and h's which only by the merest fluke ever get spelt correctly in the newspapers.

One which always strikes me with awe is that of the British Ambassador to China. It is:-

Sir Hugh Knatchbull-Hugessen. I have to give it a line to itself so that there will be no risk of additional confusion over hyphens which connect syllables and do not link names. The Ambassador's arrival in China caused dismay among proof readers on newspapers. To get all those letters in the right order is a feat requiring considerable care.

WHAT WE PREFER

Newspapers are all in favour of short, simple names which go conveniently into headlines. If Tom Smith wins the golf championship, you have no trouble at all. You write "Tom Smith Wins Championship," and all is well.

How different it is if the title is won by Sir Hugh Knatchbull-Hugessen.

It is a great help to actors, boxers, politicians and other people in the public eye to have names which are short and easily remembered. George Robey would never have had the same success if he had been George Plantaganet-Robey.

Meanwhile, for purposes of distinction, I am considering spelling my name Hopkyns, - H. T. Hopkin in the "Sunday Tribune."

FASTER R.A.F. BOMBERS

215 M.P.H. At Height Of 15,000 Feet

By using a two-speed supercharger, details of which are secret, the performance of the Armstrong Whitworth Whitley II and III heavy bomber has been much improved, as compared with the Whitley I. The type is one of the heavy bombers in production for the R.A.F. says the "Daily Telegraph."

The speed has been increased to about 215 miles an hour at a height of 15,000 feet, and the range is greater than the 1,600 miles of the Whitley I.

The Whitley carries a bomb load as big as any foreign bomber in service. The speed of the heavy bomber class, it may be stated, is considerably less than that of the latest medium and light bombers.

The two-speed supercharger maintains a high power output over a wide range of altitudes. It gives two heights at which maximum power is available.

The two Tiger VIII engines fitted to the new Whitley each develop 860-h.p. at 6,750 feet, when the moderate supercharger is in action, and 780-h.p. at 14,250 feet, when fully supercharged. This has obvious advantages over an engine which delivers its maximum power at one height only.

PORTUGUESE NATIONAL CELEBRATIONS

Eleven Years Of Progress

The anniversary of the establishment of the Republic of Portugal falls on the Fifth of October, and to-day is, therefore, the National Day of the Portuguese, and to the Portuguese wherever they may be it has always been a day of light-hearted rejoicing, and their thoughts turn to their Mother-land and its happy state, because happiness and contentment now obtain among the people there.

When it is recalled that the Republic of Portugal is still young—it was founded in 1910—and is therefore only 27 years old, the transformation that has taken place in Portugal during the last few years is all the more remarkable. Before the establishment of the Republic, Portugal had become a decadent and poverty-ridden country, but after the first fifteen years of the republican regime, during which political demagogues juggled with the happiness of the country, where was little enough of progress to justify the establishment of the democratic administration, and when it is known that the growth and prosperity of Portugal had its rise as recently as May, 1926, a little over eleven years ago, one must concede that Portugal's restoration has been marvellous indeed. The transformation is still more marvellous and startling because the change that has taken place is so unprecedentedly complete in so many different ways as to make the active and orderly Portugal of to-day, quite unrecognisable from the slumbering and revolt-torn Portugal of old.

Incredible as this seemingly impossible state of affairs may appear, the clue to or explanation of this fact is simple enough. It can be summed up in a word—good government. The many varied and tremendously great achievements attained by Portugal in such a short period of only eleven years have no parallel in the history of the country.

During its history, Portugal has experienced many vicissitudes. It is only a small state at the western extremity of Europe, bordering on the Atlantic Ocean, but Portugal produced great men who have attained world renown for great deeds as indomitable warriors and intrepid navigators and discoverers, and there was a time when the Portuguese commanded the seas from Lisbon to Japan, their trading and military posts scattered along the shores of Africa, Arabia, India, Malay, the East Indies, China and Japan, but the Portuguese retain only a very small portion of all that to which they are heirs by the right of discovery, for the fruits of the Portuguese explorations have been divided among many other nations. This story belongs to the past. It is with the present that we are concerned.

NATIONAL RENAISSANCE

When the Republic of Portugal was proclaimed on October 5, 1910, it professed to be the advent of a national renaissance, with a determination to uplift the people and to develop the resources of the country. Insurmountable difficulties were experienced, however, in the early years, for the simple reason that all the governments that came into power, though constitutional in form proved to be dismal failures in practice, through incompetence and other crying faults, and it was not till 1926 that the present government came into power. There was nothing to show at first that this government would be different from any other, but its innate honesty and purely national sentiments, under the wise, paternal care of General Carmona, as President, and the help of Portugal's financial genius, Dr. Oliveira Salazar, Premier and collaborator, gave the country its first opportunity for at least a century to pay its way economically as well as financially, inaugurating a new era of colonial administration as well as that has become firmly established as one of the outstanding achievements of the government.

STEADY REFORMS

The London "Times" was one of the first journals to sense the value of the new government in Portugal, and commenting on the results achieved by General Carmona and Dr. Salazar, at an early stage of their regime, said "a dictatorship is usually supposed to need drastic and spectacular action, but the task of the Portuguese Dictatorship is purely that of maintaining the steadily prosecuted reforms." How well these efforts have succeeded may be testified by the splendid and tremendous achievements in Portugal during the last few years.

Everywhere in that little country there is order now and steady progress, and when it is remembered that Portugal can claim to be the only nation in the world that has produced a balanced budget regularly each year for the past nine years it can be seen that a situation has arisen that has brought about steady development of industry and agriculture as well as other economic and cultural achievements. This in a country that had forgotten what it was to have a surplus. The League of Nations showed its approval of Portugal's effort by inviting Portugal to a seat on the Council of the League, and from this little act we begin to get an idea of the truly great achievement of the government and of the efforts attempted and accomplished in Portugal and the Portuguese colonies.

HONEST LABOUR

This success has not been attained without great effort, for the Government and the people have worked together, honestly and patiently to secure the just results of loyal endeavour. Already the attention of responsible writers has been drawn to the new state of affairs in Portugal, and thoughtful articles in some of the most important dailies in Europe have appeared.

In all this quiet achievement of the Portuguese the consoling fact appears that through the sacrifices made and the privations endured by the Portuguese in the past, the nation has risen dignified to take its place once more as a factor of importance among the nations of the world.

The Dictatorship of Portugal has done much, very much for Portugal, but its greatest accomplishment has been the "discovery" of Dr. Oliveira Salazar, and it must be gratifying to the Portuguese to observe that the national press as well as in newspapers of most foreign countries are loud in their praise of the work of the illustrious Portuguese Premier and Finance Minister, without whose work Portugal would never have achieved its present proud position. References have been made to Dr. Salazar as a notable example and as a shining light, and some papers have even compared him with the great men who have directed the financial and social policies of the greatest nations in the world.

ANGLO-PORTUGUESE ALLIANCE

To the British, this restoration of Portuguese national pride and independence is particularly gratifying, for the Anglo-Portuguese Alliance is the oldest attachment between nations, and extends far back to the days of John of Gaunt, and on the anniversary, therefore, of the establishment of the Republic of Portugal, all true friends of the Portuguese associate themselves in the good wishes that are extended to Portugal with the sincere hope that the present stable government of this country will continue to progress and to be a blessing not only to the Portuguese but also be able also to contribute to world peace and world happiness, and that the present leaders, who are directing the destinies of that nation, may continue to contribute their work for the good of mankind, and that the Portuguese may continue to enjoy the blessings of the efficient administration that has already contributed so much to the welfare of the nation.

BETS PAID UNDER WILL

Bookmaker's Wish Carried Out

A request contained in the will of a Folkestone commission agent, Mr. Thomas Dodds, that his betting liabilities should be settled after his death, has aroused considerable interest, writes a correspondent in the "Daily Telegraph."

As stated in the "Daily Telegraph," Mr. Dodds, referring to the Gaming Act, stated in his will: "All betting liabilities need not be discharged out of a commission agent's estate but I expressly wish that all such liabilities of mine should be honourably settled and duly paid."

A lawyer told me recently that the request had no force in law as any promise to pay a betting debt was illegal under an amendment to the Gaming Act, and as no actual sums were mentioned in the will it could not be classed as a bequest. The executors could not, therefore, pay such sums out of the money belonging to the residuary legatees.

RESIDUE FOR EXECUTORS

In the case of Mr. Dodds the two executors also received the residue of the estate, and one of them, Mr. H. S. Cohen, told me that the debts had been paid.

"The first day of our business week is Saturday and Mr. Dodds died on a Sunday," he said, "so the number of debts we had to pay was very small."

"Although we had no legal claim on the clients who had lost their bets, every one of them paid up without our asking."

A member of a prominent London firm of commission agents said that on the death of any of their clients the outstanding debts were always paid to the estate, although there was no legal obligation. On the other hand, he had only known one case of a legatee settling the betting account of a dead client. These debts could not be claimed by the firm. Such losses however, were very infrequent.

The Daily Press 友之國中

HONG KONG, OCTOBER 5, 1937.

JAPANESE "CO-OPERATION"

Already the reactions to Japanese policy have reached world-wide proportions and the atmosphere is generally unpleasantly tense. It would not be a vulgar display of verbal extravagance to assert that to-day the world is literally convulsed with fear. The international position has never been less promising, and in the Far East the situation is gloomy to the stage of blackness.

However, unpleasant as are the immediate prospects in this very troubled part of the world, there are still those to be found who somehow or other are able to convince themselves that Japan is a much maligned nation. We disagree. If we could type with acid and print on asbestos, then we would be able to let ourselves "go" in an intensely thorough manner. As it is we are doing our best with cold type on highly inflammable paper.

To those who persist in holding the view that Japan is a nation desirous of practicing the utmost co-operation in harmony with the other Powers, we would cite but one instance affecting civil life which clearly demonstrates the attitude and outlook of that nation so despicably betrayed by its imperialistic rulers. Before the Japanese depredations the Chinese conducted a very useful weather bureau on Pratas Island. In tempestuous weather, for instance, information was transmitted almost hourly and received with the keenest appreciation by the controllers of the Hong Kong Observatory. The general practice was that in normal circumstances meteorological data was exchanged by the Chinese controlled station on Pratas Island with the Hong Kong establishment. The system was eminently satisfactory and much very useful data was thus obtained.

Since the Japanese have been in control of that weather bureau on Pratas Island only three short and comparatively uninteresting messages have been received from the representatives of that nation which is, on the surface, so anxious to co-operate

British Ambassador Coming Here

Shanghai, Oct. 4.
Sir Hugh Montgomery Knatchbull-Hugessen is leaving for Hong Kong to-day aboard H.M.S. Falmouth.

Admiral Sir Charles Little also went down river in the Falmouth to join H.M.S. Cumberland in Woon-sung for an inspection trip of British naval forces in the China Coast. He will visit Amoy, Swatow and Hong Kong and expects to return in a fortnight.

with other nations in the useful ways of peace. It is significant that whilst information from Pratas Island concerning the progress of the typhoon which passed Hong Kong yesterday would have been of the utmost value to the community at large and shipping people in particular, yet not one single message was received from that Chinese station which is being usurped by the Japanese. Whilst other foreign shipping in China waters was denied the information which the Pratas Island station should have disseminated, yet it is known that the Japanese were transmitting messages in code to their own ships giving typhoon progress particulars. Perhaps it has not occurred to the Nipponese upstarts that up to the present nobody or no nation is presumed to be at war. In technical fact (which is not infrequently a lie and a bit over) everything should be as peaceful, calm and beautiful as the Garden of Eden before the advent of the snake. So we are not a little surprised that a nation so punctilious about technicalities as Japan should adopt a policy so flagrantly non-co-operative as has been demonstrated by the significant and suspicious silence of the Pratas Island station. Perhaps humanity has no call upon the Japanese. Safety, for non-combatants and merchantmen, at sea is of no concern to a nation so enthusiastically dedicated to the dastardly destruction of human life.

However, it is of some consolation to know that, in spite of the silence of the Pratas Island station which the Japanese thieved from the Chinese, the Hong Kong Observatory, by means of splendid co-operation on the part of all shipping, was kept adequately posted with the latest reports of the typhoon and was thus able to inform the public of Hong Kong and Kowloon of its approach.

We are of the opinion that this is but another example which goes to show that, when it does come to a showdown, the Japanese are neither so influential or invulnerable as they have tried, and rather successfully too, to make the world believe.

CHINA REVIEW

Action, Not Talk, Is Wanted

"This is the time to keep our mouths shut," said Dr. Lim Boon Keng, in the course of an interview in Singapore recently.

"It is no use talking; action is wanted. China has appealed to the league, but what purpose can that serve? What did the league do in the instance of the Manchurian dispute, or when Mussolini wrenched away Abyssinia."

"China's salvation lies with herself. There is already unity in the land, and everybody hopes that unity will continue. There is no likelihood of China being helped by other powers. Take for instance the first major Sino-Japanese struggle of 1894. The powers then came forth, and told Japan that she must not take this and that, but in the end, everyone took something!"

"With regard to China's chances in the present war, well one never knows. When the European war broke out, everybody thought that it would be over very soon, but it took four years to come to an end."

Chinese Conscription

Able-bodied male citizens in China between the age of 20 and 25, are being drafted for military service as part of a nation-wide conscription programme. It is estimated that there will be 40,000,000 able-bodied men placed under military training very soon. In Nanking alone 30,000 men have been enlisted, but at present only 10,000 will be included in the first draft. The city government has issued a lengthy statement explaining to the public the necessity for and advantages of conscription and giving the full text of the conscription law.

"Foreign countries," it says, "maintain comparatively small standing armies, thus keeping down their annual military expenditure to a minimum, but, because of their conscription programme, they are able to organise immediately millions of fighting men to defend their countries in times of national crisis." After dwelling on the disadvantages of a mercenary army, the statement emphasises that conscription was always enforced in China in ancient dynasties.

"With 40,000,000 able-bodied citizens having gone through full army training," the statement proceeds, "China will be ready to defend her rights in the event of foreign aggression." Under the conscription law, all able-bodied persons between the age of 18 and 45 will have to undergo military service. They will be divided into four groups, according to their ages, namely, 18 to 20; 20 to 25; 25 to 40; and 40 to 45.

CHANGED NAME AND INHERITED £28,000

Greenock Man's Sudden Death

Mr. Donald McLean-Walker, 9 Robertson Street, Greenock, who died suddenly at Lochwinnoch, last year inherited the combined fortunes, amounting to £28,000, of the Misses Isabella and Janet Walker, 13 Ardgowan Square, Greenock, on condition that he assumed their surname.

Mr. McLean-Walker, then known as McLean, had for a number of years acted as confidential secretary and manager to Miss Isabella Walker, who was a member of an old Greenock family who carried on business as carting contractors in the town.

Miss Walker died in February, 1936, leaving estate amounting to £19,130 the whole of her estate, with the exception of the heritable property known as Tandilmuir, Lochwinnoch, she left to Mr. McLean on condition that he assumed the name of Walker and was known as Donald McLean-Walker. The Lochwinnoch property was bequeathed to his son under similar conditions.

Miss Isabella Walker's sister, Janet, died a fortnight later, leaving estate amounting to £8909, which was also bequeathed to Mr. McLean on the stipulation that he assumed the name Walker.

Mr. McLean-Walker, who was aged 41 years, is survived by his wife and four children.

When the Duke of Windsor visits Prince Dietrichstein this week at Mikulov, in Czechoslovakia, he will be visiting a distant relative.

Prince Dietrichstein is descended from the Countess, and so is his uncle, Count Albert Mensdorff-Pouilly-Dietrichstein, who was Austrian Ambassador in London when the war broke out.

ANGLO-FRENCH NOTE TO ITALY

Conciliatory In Tone

NON-INTERVENTION AND THE SPANISH WAR

London, October 4.

Immediate consideration was promised for the Anglo-French joint note to Italy when it was presented to the Italian Foreign Minister, Count Ciano, in Rome on Saturday and an early reply is anticipated. It is understood that Count Ciano made no observations on the contents of the note in his interview with Lord Perth, the British Ambassador, and Monsieur Blondel, French Charge d'Affaires, reserving all comment until he had conferred with Signor Mussolini who was spending the week-end at his country home.

Wider implications of the note regarding the effect of their reception on the future development of relations of British-Italian and French-Italian relations were, it is reported, emphasised in their private conversation with Count Ciano by the representatives of the two Powers.

It is revealed that the note, which does not exceed 600 words, is conciliatory in tone and is couched in general terms. It welcomes Italian adherence to the Nyon arrangement as affording favourable conditions for examination of the situation in Spain which obstructs the progress towards European appeasement.

It is urged that until non-intervention is made effective by the withdrawal of non-Spanish combatants from Spanish territory improvement is impossible and it is suggested the previous agreement between the British, French and Italian Governments in regard to substantial measures to this end is necessary to overcome the difficulties encountered in the Non-Intervention Committee.

The "Times" states that the note adds that such a Tripartite Agreement would ease the political situation and that when substantial withdrawal of volunteers has in fact been accomplished it should be possible without much difficulty to solve other problems, such as granting of conditional belligerent rights to the two parties to the Spanish conflict. The need for speedy action and the early beginning of tripartite conversations is emphasised.—

DISTURBANCES IN LONDON

DURING FASCISTS' PROCESSION

London, Oct. 4.

Over 100 persons were arrested yesterday in connexion with disturbances which occurred during a march through the streets in south London of the British Union of Fascists. The procession was led by Sir Oswald Mosley. Anti-Fascists organised opposition to the demonstration and erected several barricades along the route which the police removed before the arrival of the procession. While so engaged the police were attacked by unruly elements some of whom also threw fireworks and other missiles and at other points on the route there were several scuffles during which the police found it necessary to draw batons. About twenty persons were injured during the disturbances.—

Sir Oswald Mosley

ROUTE DEFLECTED

London, Oct. 4.

The Fascists' march through the streets in the east end of London caused disturbances which continued throughout the procession. Opposition crowds erected a number of barricades which the police demolished. Eventually the police had to deflect the march to an alternative route. Sir Oswald Mosley eventually spoke in the midst of a loud din and interruptions while the police on horseback pressed the crowd further back. Thirty persons, including policemen, were injured while a hundred were arrested for causing disorder.—

CHINESE BASE BOMBED

New Peiping-Tientsin Regime

Peiping, Oct. 4.

Japanese planes bombed Tientsin, the base of operations of the Chinese air force in North China yesterday morning, according to a Japanese military communiqué.

It is learned that the Japanese military authorities have completed arrangements for the establishment of a new government in the Peiping-Tientsin areas which up till now have been administered by a Peace Preservation Commission, established with a Chinese personnel immediately after the Japanese occupation in August. The Japanese have now nominated two members from its body to form a joint commission, having jurisdiction over both areas. Major-General Kita, chief of the special Japanese Military Mission in North China is reported to have flown to Tokyo from Tientsin this morning to submit the plan to the Government.—

CLASH IN TUNIS THEATRE

JAPANESE RUMOURS ARE DENIED

Shanghai, Oct. 4.

While the Japanese troops consolidated their newly gained positions on the Lotien-Liuhang sector, over sixteen Japanese planes subjected Kiangwan and Chapel to a severe bombing this morning but there was no infantry attack.

The Japanese claim that the Chinese are retreating from Kiangwan is vigorously denied by a Chinese spokesman who said that respective lines are unchanged. Chinese cities in eight provinces were bombed by the Japanese yesterday according to Chinese reports. These included Kashing, Soochow, Quinsan, Ankang, the capital of Anhwei, Canton, Taiyuan, Nanchang, Hsuehchow, Han-chuan and Liuchow in Shantung.—

EARL BALDWIN

Receives Freedom Of Aix-Les-Bains

The freedom of Aix-les-Bains was conferred on Earl Baldwin recently by the Mayor, Senator Mollard, in the presence of Countess Baldwin writes the Paris correspondent of the "Daily Telegraph."

The ceremony took place in the Town Hall, which was decorated inside and out with French and English flags and the colours of the two countries in a variety of designs.

Senator Mollard handed to Lord Baldwin a copy of the resolution of the Town Council conferring on him the title of "Citoyen d'Honneur" of the ancient town.

The Mayor recalled that for many years Lord Baldwin had been an honoured visitor to Aix, seeking there recuperation from his heavy tasks of statesmanship.

He also welcomed the continuation of Franco-British friendship in which Lord Baldwin had played so great and conspicuous a part.

Lord Baldwin thanked the Mayor and the Corporation in a short speech in French. An official reception by the Mayor and Corporation was held afterwards.

WATER COLOURS

EXHIBITION BY YOUNG FRENCH ARTIST

There are on exhibition in Hong Kong at the present time some very beautiful paintings in water colours the work of Mr. Francois Geoffroy-Dechaume.

Mr. Geoffroy-Dechaume has travelled over a good part of the world in order to find material for his insatiable brush, and in the 43 specimens on view at the French Bank Building, Central America (including Guatemala and Mexico), China Proper and Hong Kong are represented.

Naturally, to local visitors, the Hong Kong exhibits held the greatest appeal. These number 20. Undoubtedly, this young exhibitor is an artist of tremendous talent. His work is noteworthy in that unlike the usual water-colour artist who works purely on colours mixed with water, he gets a splendid "white" effect by the judicious use of undiluted paint. While this is apparent in most of the exhibits, it is particularly so in a beautiful view of the Aberdeen district of Hong Kong with Lantau in the background.

There are other most beautiful views of Hong Kong and some particularly fine studies of Central Indian native life.

The exhibition is under the patronage of the French Consul and will last a week. It is needless to add that art lovers will find a visit well worth while.

SOVIET VIEWS ON NON-INTERVENTION

London, Oct. 4.

The Soviet Government's observations on the working of the Non-Intervention Committee by Admiral Van Duijn, Chairman of the Non-Intervention Board have been received by Lord Plymouth, Chairman of the Committee. The view is expressed that abandonment of Naval supervision makes impracticable the continuance of any form of control and that embarkation of international observers in merchantmen of non-intervening countries bound for Spanish ports should be discontinued.—

FAMOUS WOMAN DRIVER IN 90 M.P.H. CRASH

Trapped Under Car At Brooklands

Following a collision between two racing cars travelling at 90 m.p.h. at Brooklands recently, Mrs. K. Petre, the woman motorist, was taken to Weybridge Hospital with a fractured skull.

Late last night she was still unconscious and her condition was stated to be grave.

She is the holder of the woman's lap record at Brooklands with a speed of more than 130 m.p.h. Previously she set up a new woman's record for the Shelsley Walsh hill climb.

She was practising at Brooklands for the 500 kilometres race when she collided with a car driven by Mr. R. Parnell, another racing driver.

Both cars were on the Byfleet banking when Mr. Parnell's car skidded and shot across the track. Mrs. Petre crashed into it.

A member of the Brooklands staff, describing the accident, said: "The car driven by Mrs. Petre overturned and she was trapped beneath it."

"Mr. Parnell had a remarkable escape. His car went through a fence, jumped a ditch and yet stopped the right way up. He walked back along the track and an ambulance hurried Mrs. Petre to hospital."

Mrs. Petre was driving a 747cc Austin and Parnell was in an M.G. Magnette.

BUS MISHAP

At 7.30 p.m. last night when bus No. 814 was driving along Lai-chi-kok Road near Keelung Street, two Chinese men sharing an umbrella ran out from under the verandah and bumped on the side of bus as a result of which they both sustained injuries to their foreheads. They were sent to the Kowloon Hospital but it was said that their conditions were not serious.

CENTRE OF FIGHTING

Shifted To Wen Tsao Creek

Shanghai, Oct. 4.

Following the withdrawal southward of the Chinese forces from the Lotienchen-Liuhong sector, the centre of the fighting has now shifted to the northern bank of the Wen Tsao Creek, the main waterway at the mouth of the Whangpoo cutting inland from Woosung village towards the southwest.

The Japanese are moving in several routes in an attempt to cross the creek and to attack the Chinese rear in Kiangwan and Chapel.

Fierce fighting broke out in the vicinity of Tangchia Bridge last night when the Japanese succeeded to cross the creek about half a kilometre east of the bridge. The Chinese machine-gunned the invaders when they got into the middle of the stream, killing and drowning an undetermined number of Japanese. Early this morning the Chinese succeeded to retake all positions south of the creek where they are waiting for the next Japanese onslaught.—

JIM MOLLISON CONFESSES

"I Have Been Afraid"

There have been few franker self-revelations than Jim Mollison's "Playboy of the Air," published recently (Michael Joseph, 10s. 6d.), states the "Daily Telegraph."

"I have been terribly afraid," he writes. This is not the story of a man too coarse of grain to know the meaning of fear. It is the story of one who, for the rewards to be won, overcomes fear.

He does not gloss over his fears, or his mistakes.

Once, flying as second pilot to the late Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith in the "Southern Cross," with a cargo and passengers, "we ran into some real dirt—low over-cast and ice. This was real blind flying, the time when you can't roll back the canvas cockpit hood and look out, if you're not sure about things. Suddenly for a split second a hole yawned on my side. It stretched right down, a chimney reaching to the ground with its landmarks."

"I looked down and 'I know where we are' I bawled across to him."

"'Sure?' asked 'Smithy.' 'Positive,' I replied, anxious to impress."

"Without question or comment, the man, who knew then more about flying than I shall in ten years' time, altered course to my directions."

FOUND AIR FORCE IRKSOME
"Some time later we ran out of the clouds over the sea and, roughly, 100 miles off our course. We might easily have run out of petrol over the water and supplied another good newspaper story."

"But he said no word. Just looked once at me in my shame and put the old 'Cross' back on the right course, the one he'd been following before I got my bright idea."

"Few other pilots would have taken it quietly like that. I wouldn't."

Jim Mollison was at one time in the R.A.F., but he confesses he found the life irksome. Nevertheless, at the age of 22 he was the youngest qualified instructor in the Air Force. He was transferred to the Reserve in 1928 with a gratuity of £350.

"Only a month or two later I perused the 'London Gazette' to find that Flying Officer J. A. Mollison had been removed without obvious reason from the strength of his Majesty's armed forces."

He thinks the cause of this might have been the affair of the bedsteads. Following his service as Wing Adjutant at the Electrical and Wireless School at Farnborough 32 bedsteads were reported as missing. Asked to clear the matter up, he confesses he lost the official form provided, and that the matter dropped from his mind. He supposes he was suspected of smuggling 32 bedsteads past the sentries.

STUDIES OR WAR RELIEF WORK?

Hong Kong Schoolboys Debate China's Present Need

"The China of the future will need learned men; men of ability, character and comprehensive knowledge, who will be able to lead our country onward along the paths of progress. But learned men in the future means diligent schoolboys now. Our studies mean much to our country; were they to suffer, our country would suffer after the present war, not from the present enemy, but from our own ignorance and weakness."

"Circumstances in China concern us. We must help our country. We must take part. We have a modicum of education. We can do now for our country what others, farmers or business men, lack the knowledge or the idealism to undertake. We must use now for our country's sake what we have acquired, in war relief work, in propaganda for war relief work, in collecting funds, etc. While this work is going forward, the schools should be closed."

SCHOOLBOYS AS PROPAGANDISTS

These are two typical quotations from opposing speeches at the opening meeting of the Wah Yan College Debating Society, held in the College on Saturday, October 2. The motion proposed for discussion was the following:—"That we consider, in view of the present circumstances in China, that all Hong Kong schools should be temporarily closed, and the energies of the students devoted to war relief work."

The debate was very well attended, one of last year's members, who had returned from Canton, taking part in the debate. The speeches reached an unusually high level, many of the young orators showing quite exceptional promise.

The main lines of thought of those who defended the motion were: Schoolboys were always, and are still, the most efficient possible propagandists for works of mercy, such as are in question here. Can China in her present extreme need, afford to sacrifice all these willing helpers? How can one think of the sufferings of Chinese soldiers at the front, without being moved to help them? Our own studies will not suffer greatly; we can resume them when the first great need has passed. In times like the present, national salvation must be put before private interest. The good of the country demands that the schools be closed temporarily, in order that the keen energies of China's schoolboys be turned into these channels.

"LACK OF VISION"

The Opposition pointed out cautiously the enormous need there would be in China of leaders after the war. It would be foolish to jeopardize national progress and leadership in the future in order to meet an urgent, but far smaller need to-day.

There was, they held, a want of proportion, a lack of vision, about the Government proposals. The war would probably be a long one, if so, temporary interruption of studies would affect nothing of any value, while a protracted closing of all schools would be the gravest possible blow to future national development.

"They reminded their opponents that the schoolboys of China were, 'de facto,' doing much in the way of war relief work; they pointed to the voluntary subscriptions, to the making of bandages and splints and other medical material, practised in many schools."

A FALLACY

What more, they asked, could the majority of the students do, even if the schools were closed? And, besides, it was a fallacy to suppose that, if the schools were closed, all the students would thereupon take part in war relief work. The best way to get many boys to work was to get at them through the schools.

K.C. SAVES WIFE IN FIRE

Lowered 20ft. Down Blanket "Rope"

Sir William Jowitt, K.C., and Lady Jowitt escaped to the ground by means of blankets tied together when fire broke out at their home, Budds, Wiltshire, recently.

Sir William tied blankets to the bedroom window-frame after breaking the glass, lowered his wife 20ft. to the ground, and then slid down to safety himself.

He then obtained a ladder and rescued his sister, Miss Lettice Jowitt, and an old servant, Mr. Hastings, who had climbed out of a window on to a parapet a foot wide. Sir William's butler, Mr. Linnmer, the head gardener, Mr. Keet, and a maid, who had climbed on the roof, were also rescued by means of blankets and a ladder.

The fire broke out in a lounge below Sir William's bedroom. The library, containing many valuable old books, and an adjoining drawing-room were damaged, but tenants and servants using garden hoses saved the main part of the house, and the outbreak was under control by the time the fire brigade arrived.

There were about a score of people in the house at the time.

NECK BROKEN IN DIVING

Walter Edward Daw, aged 17, of King's-road, West Swanage, Dorset, a seaman, made a steep dive from a height of about seven feet into the sea at Swanage and broke his neck. At the inquest a verdict of accidental death was returned.

Daw was on leave from H.M.S. Rodney, and was seen to dive from the landing-stage. His hands, a witness stated, were not extended to resist touching bottom.

Connaught Rd. Fire Inquest

OLD MAN'S DEATH

An inquest into the death of Tong Cheong, aged 76, of No. 134 Connaught Road West, who died as a result of a fire which broke out during the typhoon of Sept. 2 was held at the Central Magistrate's yesterday.

Mr. W. Schofield sat as Coroner, assisted by a jury comprising Messrs. M. Nemazee (foreman), M. V. Neves and A. J. Hussain. Mr. W. M. Brown held a watching brief on behalf of several insurance companies.

Dr. R. S. Begbie, medical officer in charge of Victoria Mortuary, testified that the cause of death was asphyxiation. On close examination water was found in the stomach.

Mr. J. C. Fitz Henry, Superintendent of the Hong Kong Fire Brigade, said that on Sept. 2 about 3.44 p.m. reports were received at the Central Fire Station from fire alarms at Bonham Strand West, Eastern Street and by private phone that a fire was raging at Connaught Road.

Appliances from Central and Kennedy Town Fire Stations were rushed to the scene. On arrival the fire was found to be from No. 131 to No. 136. It was out of control and the fire was spreading with great rapidity owing to the strong winds. Hoses which were played upon the building had no effect. Forty bodies were heaped together but a wave came over the prayer wall and took the bodies into the sea. A fire engine was also rendered useless by this wave. To prevent the fire from spreading the firemen were ordered to work in Ham Yue Street. At 6 a.m. the typhoon showed signs of abating and the fire was brought under control about 7 a.m. but it was not until the afternoon that the fire was finally extinguished.

Witness said that the firemen worked under great strain and difficulty.

Tong Ki, aged 51, oldest daughter of the deceased, stated that her father retired to his cubicle about 9 p.m. At midnight he was awakened by the strong wind. At 2 a.m. fire broke out and everybody ran down the stairs.

Witness stated that her younger brother found the body of the deceased floating in the harbour under the China Merchants' wharf the following day.

Tong Cheung gave evidence of having found the body.

Tsang Hi-hong, salesman of a tea dryers establishment, No. 135 Connaught Road West, testified that about 2 a.m. he was awakened by smoke and fire coming out of the shop.

At this stage the hearing was adjourned to October 20.

HOME OFFICE WARNS TRADERS

Ban On Use Of Royal Names And Portraits

A notice has been issued by the Home Office stating that the name or likeness of any member of the Royal family, heirs or heirs presumptive to the Throne, must not be used for trade purposes, states the "Daily Telegraph."

The manufacture and sale of goods which already bear Royal names or portraits may continue until the end of the year. Thereafter, remaining stocks of such goods can be sold only with the permission of the Home Office.

Titles and portraits of former kings and queens on articles which have always borne them will not be banned.

A formal grant of Royal permission must be obtained through the Home Office to brand goods "Queen Elizabeth" or "Princess Margaret" or to print Royal portraits on biscuit tins or chocolate boxes.

For some months before the Coronation manufacturers were allowed to decorate their goods in this manner without obtaining the formal grant. After the Coronation the restriction automatically returned, but large quantities of goods bearing Royal names and portraits without authorisation continue to be sold.

The Home Office notice will necessitate the invention of new names for many hundreds of "lines." It will affect types of goods varying from silk stockings to cars.

LOUIS-FARR FIGHT FILM

The film of the fight between Joe Louis and Tommy Farr was given a Press preview at the Queen's Theatre yesterday and confirmed all that boxing critics have said of the fine performance given by the British heavyweight champion.

Cables on the fight have already prepared us to what to expect. Louis is rather disappointing in that he does not appear to make enough use of his right, but Farr is a revelation. A clever boxer, quick on his feet, his weaving plainly disconcerts the champion, who finds it difficult to land on a moving target.

Furthermore, Farr carries the fight to Louis and is on the offensive throughout. It is a pity that his right is not more effective; he is shown to connect on several occasions, but apart from shaking up the champion, these punches seem to do no serious damage.

Judging by the film, there seems little doubt that Louis won all right but the margin must have been a very narrow one.

The agenda is, (a) to arrange the fixtures for the 1937-38 season and (b) any other business. In connection with (a), each representative is requested to provide himself with information regarding the dates and times on which grounds are available and the dates upon which teams will be unable to play.

BRITISH EMPIRE
GAMES

A BUSY WEEK

Athletes From
Hong Kong

Details of the programme for British Empire Games to be held in Sydney from February 5 to 12,
1938, are as follows:—

Saturday, February 5, Grand Opening Ceremony, Track and Field Athletics, Swimming.

Monday, February 7, Boxing and Wrestling.

Tuesday, February 8, Cycling.
Wednesday, February 9, Diving,
Rowing, Swimming.

Thursday, February 10, Track and Field Athletics, Boxing and Wrestling.

Friday, February 11, Swimming.
Saturday, February 12, Track and Field Athletics, Cycling.

Conducted in conjunction with the celebration of the 150th Anniversary of the foundation of Australia, these Games will be the greatest athletic carnival yet attempted in the Southern Hemisphere.

More than 400 athletes will compete, including nearly 200 in visiting teams representing 18 countries of the Empire. Selected athletes will travel from England,
Scotland, Wales, Northern Ireland,
Canada, South Africa, Rhodesia,
New Zealand, Malta, India, Ceylon,
Newfoundland, Bermuda, Trinidad,
Jamaica, British Guiana, Fiji and Hong Kong, to compete with the best athletes from all parts of Australia. A team of at least six athletes, swimmers, and a trainer-manager will represent Trinidad.

At the Games, keen competition is expected for positions in the Canadian swimming team, for which trials will be held at Victoria, British Columbia, on December 10; and British Guiana will, almost certainly, be represented by the world-famous athlete,
Dr. Phil Edwards and Walter Spence.

Dr. Edwards must be considered as one of the greatest half-mile runners in the world as he filled third place at the Olympic Games at Los Angeles in 1932 and also at the Berlin Olympiad in 1936. In 1934, he won the championship at the London Olympiad.

Walter Spence is a champion all-round swimmer who has on several occasions won U. S. A. free-style, breast-stroke, and back-stroke and medley titles. At one time he held the world's records for breaststroke swimming at distances of 100 and 200 yards.

BRITISH BASEBALL

Britain is playing more baseball
The game's chief stronghold is in the north, where every Saturday
this season, from 25,000 to 30,000 people watched their favourite teams. Two years ago nearly 20,000 paid to watch a baseball game at Headingley in Yorkshire.

In the south its hold is less firm,
though there are several promising clubs such as Romford Wasps, the Pirates and the Corinthians. What of the future? Will baseball ever become a serious rival to cricket?

The younger generation seems to be "falling" for the game with enthusiasm. The London County Council have just decided to provide accommodation for 7 schoolboy baseball teams and it is understood that further applications are rolling in. The difficulty of finding suitable enclosures has proved the main obstacle in the way of further development of baseball in Britain.
The 6 London Major League teams have only 3 grounds between them.

OUT OF THE BLUE

along a street in Cologne, a flat iron fell from a fourth-floor window and crashed through its roof.

It fell on the head of a woman passenger. She was taken to hospital severely injured.

RUGBY BREAK
WITH FRANCEFriendly Relations
Not Likely Yet

Rumours are once more current in London that a healing of the breach between the Rugby Unions of the four home countries and the French Federation is imminent.

When the break occurred in 1931,
a committee of the four Unions
passed a resolution that fixtures could not be arranged until they were satisfied that control and conduct of the game in France had been placed on a satisfactory basis.

The Unions have discussed the matter from time to time, but it is understood unofficially that a continuance of "friendly relations" is not yet likely.

F.A.'s New President

Mr. W. Pickford Succeeds
Sir Charles Clegg

The Football Association recently chose Mr. W. Pickford their Senior Vice-President, to succeed the late Sir Charles Clegg in the office of President.

Mr. Pickford, who will be 76 on September 28, has been a member of the F.A. Council since 1888, and has been Hon. Treasurer of the Hampshire F.A. from its inception in 1887. By his election to the Presidency, Mr. Pickford becomes
Chairman of the F.A. Council.

Although Mr. Pickford, a son of a Congregational Minister, has spent a big part of his life in Hampshire and has always been identified with Hampshire football, he is Lancashire born, being a native of Little Lever, near Bolton.

Small in stature, Mr. Pickford was a great sportsman in his young days. He was Hampshire's first Association football captain, and played for Bournemouth from 1883 to 1893.

At one time he held the captain-
cies of his local football, swimming and cycling clubs, while afterwards he captained the winning team in the final for the Hampshire water-polo cup.

Mr. Pickford played Rugby in his schoolboy days, and when he started his career it was as a journalist. He suggested among other things that a half-way line
should be marked on the field, and that a player should not be
"off-side" in his own half of the field. He also had an amendment of the penalty law adopted, and made the first move which brought referees under the control of the F.A. He designed and prepared the Referees' Chart.

FRENCH DIPLOMATIC CHANGES

An assistant consul is being sent out to Shanghai to help the French Consul-General in the present time of stress. He is M.
Auge, who until now has been in Vancouver.

Among other diplomatic changes,
France is to have a new "Intro-ducer of Ambassadors" in the place of M. Becq de Fouquieres, who has held the post with great dignity for twenty years and has reached retiring age. M. Becq de Fouquieres' successor as Chief of the Protocol and Introducer of Ambassadors to the President of the Republic is M. Loze. M. Loze at present holds the rank of Consul-General.

M. de Dampierre, Minister in Belgrade, has been appointed Minister in Ottawa. The present Minister in Ottawa, M. Brugere, is going to Belgrade.

Jean Arthur threatens to retire for six months after finishing her present picture, "Easy Living."

TENNIS TOUR OFF

Unattractive Team

The tour which the British women lawn tennis players were to have made in Australia after the Wightman Cup matches in New York, has been cancelled at the request of the Australian L.T.A.

This is the outcome of communications between the two bodies ever since it was known that some of the British players were unable to accept the invitation to travel on to Australia after playing in America.

It has been the opinion in Australia that a British side, lacking several stars, would not be attractive enough to ensure the tour being a financial success.

Some time before they went to America Miss Kay Stammers, Miss
E. M. Dearman and Miss M. Lumb
—three of the six members of the Wightman Cup side now in America—intimated that they were not prepared to go to Australia afterwards. The other three were.

The names of other British players to make up the team were forwarded to the Australian authorities, but apparently these were not acceptable.

SINCE HE WAS 60

A thousand wickets in club
cricket, since his 60th birthday, have fallen to Mr. William Jones, a Leigh-on-Sea cricketer playing for Eastwood Belfairs, a local club.

A short time ago he became 65,
and almost to the day he captured
with his slow ball 1000th wicket
in five seasons.

In 1932, the year of his 60th
birthday, he was living at Wisbech, and took 55 wickets. The following season his bag was 154. Coming to Leigh the following year and playing mid-week and Saturday cricket, he totalled 202. He took 223 in 1934 and 223 last year. So far this season he has taken 150.

All through the winter he undergoes courses of exercises and he often plays cricket three times a week.

THRIFT OF THE NATION

New High Record

The continued growth of savings by small investors in Great Britain has resulted this year in a new high record being reached.

The total aggregate sum invested in National Savings Certificates, the Post Office Savings Bank, and the Trustee Savings Banks on March 31, was approximately £1,378,400,000. This is an increase of £59,000,000 over the previous year's total.

The National Savings Committee, in giving these figures in their twenty-first annual report, express gratification that the amounts remaining invested in Savings Certificates and the balances due to depositors in the Post Office Savings Bank and the Trustee Savings Banks on March 31 were in each case the highest ever recorded. The number of National Savings Groups at work at the end of last year had increased by 850 to 37,998. Of these, 10,824 were in places of employment, 22,815 in schools, and 4,352 in social organizations. The number of National Savings Clubs had increased from 1,293 to 2,304; penny savings banks affiliated to the National Savings Committee from 4,850 to 6,141; and branches of the Army Savings Association from 538 to 557.

PROVIDENT SCHEMES

A satisfactory feature of the year's work was the increase in the number of National Savings Groups running provident schemes for the benefit of employees. The increase of 87—bringing the total to 445—was the largest for any year since 1930-31.

The number of National Savings Certificates (16s. or 15s. units) sold during the year was 34,256,577, an increase of 249,235; and the cash value was £25,692,433, an increase of £173,636. The average weekly sale of certificates was 558,780; of a cash value of £494,085. The number of certificates sold in Scotland during the year, which is included in the above figures, was 3,410,058; the cash value being £2,557,544.

The repayment of certificates involved £27,043,729 in principal—a decrease compared with the previous years of £58,462—and £9,335,700 in interest—an increase of £437,700.

The grand total of certificates issued since the introduction of the movement in 1916 was 1,348,279,869, with a corresponding cash value of £1,080,998,839. The amount of principal remaining invested on March 31 was £390,093,525, a decrease during the 12 months of £1,356,296. The estimated total amount due to holders of certificates, including accrued interest, was £514,000,000, an increase of £9,300,000.

POST OFFICE DEPOSITS

Deposits received during the year by the Post Office Savings Bank amounted to £130,272,000, an increase of £11,872,000, while those received by the Trustee Savings Banks totalled £62,148,000, an increase of £3,634,000. Balances due to depositors at the end of the year were £252,260,000 from the Trustee Savings Banks—an increase of £14,300,000—and £612,138,000 from the Post Office Savings Bank—an increase of £38,430,000.

In conclusion the committee state that, set up in the stress of war-time, the movement has long since become part of the country's normal and settled life, and they look with pride and satisfaction on the service it had given to the nation through the 21 years of its history.

COW BREAKS MILK RECORD

Barford Beauty, a 16-year-old British Friesian cow owned by Mr. H. R. Butler, of Wimborne, Dorset, has broken the record held by another British Friesian for aggregate milk production.

This cow has produced 174,971lb. of milk, thus exceeding the record established by Mr. V. E. Vickers' Eccleshall May Queen in her lifetime. She produced 174,884lb. Barford Beauty has calved eleven times, and has twice passed the 2,000 gallon total in a lactation not exceeding 365 days. In spite of her age she is still a deep and attractive cow. She has added several daughters to Mr. Butler's herd.

Her sire was a son of 'Bulkeley Mistle' Ceres, who sired two 2,000-gallon cows.

TORPEDO TACTICS

The Irreducible Element Of Chance

(BY SIR HERBERT RUSSELL)

A new type of torpedo-boat has lately been running its acceptance trials in Stokes Bay. Considerable reticence is observed in official circles regarding this craft, but it is generally understood that she is 70 feet long, is designed for a speed of 50 knots, and is fitted to carry two 21in. torpedoes. In a sense she may be said to mark the completion of a cycle. The first torpedo-boat ever built for the British Navy was the Lightning, turned out by Thornycroft in 1876. She was 87 feet long overall and displaced 28.5 tons, and her top speed was 18.5 knots.

The evolution of the torpedo-boat and the destroyer is, of course, a matter of common knowledge. Now we are back to a craft of very much the same dimensions as the original torpedo-boat of 61 years ago. But beyond this comparison virtually ceases, for to suggest that the new boat represents a reversion to the old torpedo tactics would be merely ridiculous.

The original torpedo was really a static internal machine, exploding on contact. It did a remarkable amount of damage during the American Civil War; indeed, it is estimated that three-fourths of the shipping then destroyed were disposed of by this means. The modern weapon dates from 1870. In that year the inventor, Whitehead, came to England and the Admiralty were interested in his experiments. An old corvette was anchored in the Medway and in the presence of a large party of naval officers and officials Whitehead blew up from a range of 138 yards with his fish, or self-propelled torpedo. The Admiralty thereupon purchased his secret and sole rights. Development was rapid. By 1880 the torpedo had become the object and cause of a special type of craft to employ it, and flotilla tactics began to take form. The French concentrated strenuously upon this new method of naval warfare, and it was to meet the menace of their bigger and faster torpedo-boats that the destroyer was born.

TIP-AND-RUN TACTICS

The new torpedo-boat, with a reputed speed of 50 knots, would be pre-eminent in such "tip-and-run" tactics. But is there any longer any need to employ them? The 21in. torpedoes have a deadly accurate range up to about 16,000 yards, and if a potential victim will only be so obliging as after the discharge of the projectile she will pretty certainly receive it. Why, then, dash in under a fierce anti-torpedo barrage?

The original torpedo-boat was designed to fulfil the single function associated with her name; so the modern destroyer is a re-fitted, but did not supplant her. The modern destroyer is a regular maid-of-all-work. She is still peculiarly fitted to the role of torpedo attack, but she is likewise intended to do a very great deal more than that. Every capital ship and cruiser is nowadays fitted with torpedo tubes, although the tendency seems to be rather to reduce the number of these. Torpedo officers and ratings are also carried, so that it is true to say that the big fighting ships are all potential torpedo craft. But, of course, in their case the torpedo is merely the weapon of opportunity, and, judging from the experience of the Great War, they found very little occasion for employing it. On the other hand, with the destroyer it is still reckoned the weapon of primary purpose.

SMALL RESULT AT JUTLAND

The greatest display of torpedo tactics was undoubtedly that given during the Battle of Jutland. Whether the flotillas might have been used to better advantage than they were during the course of the action is rather a pointless question to discuss yet again. The courage and determination shown by both sides were magnificent beyond all praise. Yet the net result, at any rate throughout the day action, was surprisingly small. On the British side the Marlborough was the only ship hit, and even this, apparently, was by a stray torpedo and not in the course of any flotilla attack. During the night our destroyers, dogging the German Fleet as closely as possible, were more successful, yet not nearly so much so as Jellicoe believed when he framed his Jutland dispatches. Later he seems to have modified his early impressions.

The German destroyers of the Jutland period carried six torpedoes; ours carried only four. Flotilla manoeuvres had been an outstanding feature in the German Navy in pre-war days and had resulted in a high reputation for skill and daring. Adm. Jellicoe estimated that in the case of a British line of eight battleships the chances of a hit for torpedoes which reached the line in a beam-on attack would be "roughly at seven to nine," taking the length of a ship as 600 feet and the distance from the bow of one ship to the bow of her next astern as two and a half cables.

This calculation viewed in the light of what happened—or rather did not happen—at Jutland only goes to demonstrate what a very large factor the element of chance is in torpedo warfare. Both the Germans and ourselves were striving to produce a "trackless torpedo," but without success—"United Services Review."

Quartermaster's Canaries

A True Singapore Story

Quartermaster Matt Richards of the Dollar Liner President van Buren was a bird fancier, so he bought a white canary while the vessel was at Tokyo. But Matt soon grew tired of listening to one songster, and when the ship arrived at Hong Kong, he purchased a yellow canary.

Everything went on well until the Dollar Liner arrived in Singapore. Matt hung the cage just outside his cabin but on returning to his cabin later in the day, found the birds missing.

A detective, however, who was in the vicinity of Tanjong Pagar at the time saw a Chinese behaving in a rather suspicious way. He was asked to turn up his pockets and to the detective's amazement, produced the two birds.

But the Chinese was a vindictive man. Before the detective could take possession of the canary, he had strangled Matt's white canary from Kobe and thrown it into a drain. He was promptly arrested. Choy Kim pleaded guilty to the theft of both canaries, and to a further charge of cruelty to animals by placing two birds in his pocket and causing the death of one.

He was fined $15 days' rigorous imprisonment on the first charge and $5 or five days' on the second count, the sentences to run consecutively.

"HAUNTED" WARDROBE SOLD

The "haunted" wardrobe of Carterton has been sold by Mrs. Barclay, of Carterton Manor, near Oxford, for £50. This was the highest of a number of bids she has received since her advertisement in the "Morning Post" recently of a "Haunted" Wardrobe complete with ghost, which was bought for £10 at Streatham three years ago.

The new owner is Mr. E. Rundle, ex-R.A.F. officer, and landlord of the Plough Inn, Clarendon, Oxfordshire. The wardrobe—with or without its ghost—went south to its new home. It is now standing in an outhouse in the garden of the inn.

"The Plough is being rebuilt," the landlord said. "At the moment there is no room large enough for the haunted wardrobe, but I am having my own bedroom enlarged, and then I shall have it put in there. Anyone who wants to sleep in that room will be at liberty to do so. But personally, I do not believe in ghosts."

Mrs. Barclay and her secretary, Mr. East, are thankful that the cupboard has gone.

"At last we shall be able to get some servants to stay here again," said Mr. East. "That is, of course, if the wretched ghost has really gone. It is not only the nuisance of staff problems, but hat. We decided in the end to put the wardrobe in the garden for the night so as to get some rest."

In the meantime, a suggestion for laying the ghost has been sent to the "Morning Post" by a reader.

"The ghost speaks for himself,"
she writes, "by walking downstairs.
The wardrobe should go that way, back to Streatham. To solve his (the ghost's) present, a member of his family should be found whose living spirit, meeting his spirit, may be able to bring to light something for their advancement. The old-fashioned clothes speak a difficulty in the finding of same, but a family tale, of long standing,
may give the clue."

Now is the time to visit
Australia & New Zealand

lands of Sunshine and Romance. "Down Under" you will feel a new being and even if you are not inclined towards Golfing, Fishing, Shooting or Mountaineering you will find that the Antipodes have plenty to offer you—including 250 for your pound. On the way down your life aboard will be as you wish, quiet or hectic for the E. & A. will honour your every whim.

And by the way, there is no additional charge for Deck Cabins and there is of course a "Sun Deck" swimming pool, an orchestra, and a fine laundry.

Saxophones and Stenographs are at your disposal and last but not least—we had almost forgotten—the cuisine will set you listening eagerly for the Gong.
